Quebec Parleys For All-Out Offensive

ALLIES OUT TO CONFRONT NAZIS WITH OVER-ALL SUPERIORITY IN ARMOUR

LONDON, August 19.

Reuter's military correspondent in London cables:— Vital decisions, which will affect the whole course of the war, are being discussed in Quebec, and may be put into execution this very week-end.

The Allied staffs have now had time to complete their far-reaching strategical plans down to the smallest details. They only await the final approval by President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill. After that, dramatic developments may be expected forthwith.

The Allies are ready to strike where and when they please. They have complete freedom of initiative.

With the command of the sea and supremacy in the air, there is scarcely any limit to the region of Allied invasion. IT COULD BE MADE AS EASILY NORTH OF NAPLES AS SOUTH. Furthermore, operations further north would give the Allies room for manoeuvre and opportunity to exercise with full effect that crushing superiority in armour that could not be used in Sicily.

All For Signal From Quebec

Reuter's special correspondent in Washington cables: All competent circles here are now convinced that the invasion of Italy only awaits a signal from Quebec, which will be given very shortly. It is also believed that the "one thing at a time" stage in Allied strategy is nearing an end. Well-informed quarters expect early attacks on Europe from the West on a widespread scale even before the conquest of the Italian mainland. This belief is based on the recognition of limited possibilities of striking at Germany by land from the South.

One military expert stated "Britain is the oldest and greatest Allied base in this war. We cannot neglect the opportunity of eliminating Italy, but a major blow at Germany must be struck from the West—and soon."

At the same time, commentators emphasise that the Allied command will not be swayed by demands for a second front into launching a premature full-scale invasion of France and the Low Countries, failure of which would have a disastrous effect for the subjugated people of Europe.

It follows the complete suspension of telephone communications between Italy and Switzerland which until yesterday was still possible via Germany.

"M. G." Criticises Dictatorial Policy Of India Govt.

MANCHESTER, Aug. 19.

Criticism of "aspects of democracy" are made by the "Manchester Guardian" on Thursday.

It says "Mr. Amery has stated that the Indian Government has decided that Mr. Gandhi's views should not be reported through him, the Secretary of State, to the British Parliament or people, and also that it is "not desired" that the British people should know what Mr. Gandhi thinks.

"Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Liberal leader, inquires whether the House of Commons 'is going to abdicate its ultimate constitutional responsibility.'

"In theory Mr. Amery, Secretary of State, instructs the Indian Government and answers for his instructions to the British Parliament.

"In fact our system now amounts to this, as stated by Mr. Amery himself, that the Indian Government decided what the Secretary of State is to be allowed to say and what the British people is to be allowed to know.

These may be what the British Parliament and people want, but why call it democracy?"—Reuter.

ALLIES MAY SYNCHRONISE ATTACKS ON ITALY AND SOUTHERN FRANCE

(Adapted from the New York Newspaper P M)

An Allied invasion of Italy, or of Italy and Southern France simultaneously, may be the next item on our victory agenda. Many observers feel that the pattern of Allied strategy in an attack on Italy will not aim solely through Sicily for though a large Allied force is already massed only a few miles from the Italian mainland, this short route does not necessarily offer the best military advantages. Once established in Southern Italy, the Allies might have to beat their way north along a mountainous trail. That would depend, of course, primarily on the Nazis' plans—and what the leaders now meeting in Quebec know of them.

Possibly the best way of knocking Italy out of the war would be to cut the country in half, isolating the southernmost regions from Germany by occupation of essential ports, and land communications in the centre.

This plan might involve a determined sea-air attack against the Italian naval bases of Taranto and Brindisi where the major part of the Italian fleet is now semi-immobilised, while Allied troopships crossed the Mediterranean for other landings. A major step would be the occupation of a large, well-developed port in central Italy—possibly Naples. This would be accomplished by a sea-borne force after Allied naval and air strength had laid Naples' defences low. The occupation of Naples would provide the Allies with an important base to which supplies could be speedily dispatched from North Africa. Moreover, Naples would give the Allies virtually complete control of railroads and highways running along the Italian west coast to the south. Communications on the Adriatic coast fewer and less efficient, could possibly be cut in a dozen places by paratroops.

This campaign would not immediately threaten the main enemy—Germany — because Italy probably would not be used as a highway into the heart of Europe. The towering Alps in northern Italy—across which there is only one pass, the Brenner —are an effective barrier.

A second invasion plan embraces landings in northern Italy and on the southern coast of France. This could be carried out simultaneously with or shortly after the first campaign.

The pre-requisite to this plan is the destruction of the remaining strength of Axis air and naval bases on Sardinia and Corsica. Once they are knocked out, Allied shipping would pass through a wide stretch of friendly water—far from Axis air bases.

The strategy used in landing in southern France might well follow that used in our invasion of North Africa and Sicily; landings at numerous points, some troops putting ashore on both sides of such ports as Marseille and Toulon, others serving as feinting operations; naval bombardment and aerial bombing of Nazi installations.

One of the first acts of Allied troops after landing would be to cut rail links between southern France and Italy, thus virtually isolating Germany from Italy except by air through the Brenner Pass.

The occupation of France's Mediterranean shore would bring the Allies close to the heart of Hitler's Europe.—U. S. O. W. I.

The warning that there is every chance of a serious outbreak of epidemic diseases in Calcutta in the near future unless suitable measures are adopted immediately to meet the situation created by thousands of people coming to city for gruel from free kitchens is sounded by the Health Officer of the Calcutta Corporation in a report to the Public Health Committee of the Corporation.

He adds that 15 to 25 per cent of cholera cases are reported from among the people picked up from the streets.

Sind Merchants To Bengal's Rescue

KARACHI, August 19.

To consider how best they could help to relieve the distress caused in eastern India, particularly Bengal, representatives of various commercial organisations in Karachi are meeting to-morrow at the Karachi Indian Merchants Association.

It suggested that merchants should request the Government of Sind to allow export of foodgrains to these areas independently instead of through the syndicates as that would enable cheaper prices to the consumers. The Karachi Indian Merchants' Association has already appointed a strong committee of six members to collect funds to send 500 maunds of rice and other food grains to Bengal.—A. P.

Audit Clerks For Military Accounts

NEW DELHI, Aug. 19.

Press Communique:—

In a Press Note issued on the 1st July, 1942, it was explained that war developments may make it necessary to require Government servants to serve in any part of India where their services may be needed and that an Ordinance had accordingly been issued.

The Government of India and the Auditor-General of India have, for some time been experiencing considerable difficulty in finding clerical personnel with suitable training and experience to staff the Military Accounts Department, the strength of which since the outbreak of war has been expanded more than four-fold. The trained man-power available for the accounting and audit of the direct war activities of the Supply and War Departments has been found to be insufficient to ensure an acceptable standard of audit. It has therefore, become clearly necessary that powers conferred by the Ordinance should be utilised for diverting trained personnel of the Indian Audit Department wherever they may be required in India and the intention expressed in the previous Press Note has to be modified accordingly. Such powers will, however, be exercised only when this is found to be absolutely necessary in the interests of the country as a whole.—A. P.

Govt.'s 'No' To Cloth & Yarn Merchants

Stocks Must Be Liquidated By Aug. 31: Ceiling Prices Of Some Varieties Fixed

The fixation of price-ceiling for certain varieties of cloth and yarn and the liquidation of stocks by August 31, with no further extension of date except in genuine proved cases when Government would arrange for their disposal through the Textile Control Board were the main decisions contained in a statement issued on Thursday by the Textile Commissioner, Government of India.

The statement is issued in agreement with the Chairman of the Textile Control Board and after approval by the Government of India in the Department of Industries and Civil Supplies.

Following is the full text of the statement:—

NEW CEILING PRICES

"As a result of the recommendations made at the recent meetings of the appropriate Committees of the Textile Control Board, ceiling prices have been fixed as in the list below for certain standard varieties of cloth and yarn. The Board will expand this list as much as practicable and as soon as possible to include the largest possible number of well-known varieties.

Description of Cloth.	Dimensions. Width	Length	Weight	Counts of yarn. Warp	Weft	Reed	Picks	Ex-Mill Ceiling Prices per piece (or per lb where stated)

11. Grey Longcloth (Markin) and other dimensions	43	38	11	22s	22s	48	44	24 6 0 per piece. (or 2 3 0 per lb.)
12. Sateen	44	22½	8	14s	14s	40	36	14 10 0 per piece.
	45

Description of yarn.	Ex-Mill Ceiling price per bundle of 10 lbs. Rs. a. p.
1. 10s Market	13 10 6
2. 20s Market	17 8 9
3. 30s Market	21 7 3
4. 40s Market (Indian)	25 5 6

"The above are the maximum ex-mill ceiling prices. It has been agreed that cloth and yarn will be sold at these prices, or at corresponding prices for other qualities, in retail, at a uniform maximum price all over India, which shall not exceed a margin of 15 per cent over the ceiling prices excluding freight and other charges, which will not be above 5 per cent., or a total gross margin of 20 per cent. The public will, therefore, be enabled to buy their supplies at the above prices plus 20 per cent.

"It has been further agreed that in respect of undelivered goods originally contracted for delivery in August 1943 and onwards, prices for all deliveries subsequent to the date of this announcement will be reduced to the ceiling prices mentioned above. The Board has undertaken to ensure that merchants who receive these concessions from the mills will pass them on in full to their buyers. Supplies should, therefore, be immediately available to the consumer at the above prices.

NO EXTENSION OF SALE

"Government have declined to extend the dates prescribed in the Order. It is, however, possible that in spite of their best efforts to sell their goods dealers may yet find themselves in possession of unopened bales of cloth and yarn on 31st August. In order to encourage and assist the orderly marketing of such cloth and yarn it has been agreed that in such cases all unmarked goods in original mill bales remaining unsold after the 31st August, will be taken over by Government acting through the Textile Control Board at a discount ranging from 5 to 7 1/2 per cent. on the ex-mill prices quoted above and on corresponding prices for other qualities not included in the list. The exact prices which will be agreed upon in each case by the Textile Commissioner and the Chairman, will in no case exceed the actual cost to the dealer, plus reasonable carrying charges, but excluding interest. Such purchases will be confined to those cases only where genuine cloth and yarn dealers can prove that they have made every effort to dispose of their stocks. The disposal of such stock on Government account will be undertaken by the Control Board which will immediately establish a suitable organisation for this purpose, such as establishing retail shops, particularly in large urban areas, where the stock will be retailed at prices not exceeding 10 per cent. gross on the price paid to the dealer.

"The above arrangements are intended to provide relief to those in the trade holding stocks who have made genuine efforts to comply with the provisions of the Order, and Provincial Governments, and States, will rigorously enforce the provisions of the Cotton Cloth and Yarn (Control) Order against dealers and others who have made no genuine efforts to dispose of their stocks within the ceiling prices indicated, or by offering them to the Control Board at a discount on the ceiling prices as stated above.

"A further announcement will be made prescribing the procedure that dealers should follow in making their offers to the Control Board of stocks of unmarked goods which they have been unable to unpack or dispose of by the 31st August."

DANGEROUS DRIFT

Indians in America and their well-meaning American friends like Miss Pearl Buck and Mr. Louis Fischer are making earnest attempts to see that India figures at the Quebec Conference. They are making a personal representation to this effect to President Roosevelt. Some British friends have made a specific suggestion to the British Government urging "the immediate opening of negotiations with the Indian people for the formation of an Indian National Government so that the masses of India may play their part in the war of liberation." But the last many months have shown that both America and Britain are thinking so much of their own special interests that they have practically ignored those of India, in spite of all their professions about world freedom and democracy. It does not seem to have yet occurred to them that repression and scarcity, both products of the war, have created such deep and widespread discontent that only national freedom can grip the imagination of the people and induce them to throw themselves wholeheartedly into every kind of war-effort.

Some Labour leaders in Britain have seized the opportunity provided by Mr. Rajagopalachari's suggestions and have urged Lord Linlithgow to release Congress leaders at once and set up a National Government. But a false sense of prestige and perhaps of security while the Congress leaders are away in prison seems to have seized the authorities, one and all, goading them into a policy of drift and preventing them from doing what their better judgment should declare as inevitable. Not a single responsible British paper has approved of the Viceroy's last farewell speech to the Indian Legislature, while papers like the "Daily Herald", the "Manchester Guardian" and the "News Chronicle" have strongly condemned it. But no effort is being made by the British Government to retrieve the worsening situation in India before it is too late.

Bombay Convocation

In his convocation address Sir John Colville pointed out that there was "much maladjustment in the economic field" and that graduates were being turned out every year "with little hope of obtaining the employment for which they undertook their University career." But he added that "this was no fault of the University." No University in India can escape responsibility for this maladjustment. Sir John himself admitted that "it ought to be a part of University policy to endeavour by every means within the University's control to see that demand and supply are reasonably related" as else there is bound to be "educational inflation and deflation." Most deplorable has been the neglect by Indian Universities and Government of higher and varied technical instruction, though the Bombay University is not the worst sinner in this respect. The result is that Indian industries have suffered much and the war has revealed a deplorable lack of technicians, who have, therefore, to be sent to Britain for training in the midst of the war. The Governor expects great industrial advance after the war with the help of the hundreds of technicians now trained by Government. But what can they do if the Government of India fail to give Indian industries all the protection they need? The trouble in India is that she is not free to help herself in all possible ways. The Governor knows this but too well but is naturally very reticent about it. Indian young men, however, know as well that there is no great future for them unless and until their country is completely independent.

Peace Mission?

Unless it is a routine affair, which it does not appear to be, Sir Samuel Hoare's forthcoming visit to London after meeting General Franco may well have something important to do with the situation in the Mediterranean and particularly in Italy. Sir Samuel Hoare's real "principals" are not in London but at Quebec talking military and political matters with President Roosevelt and he will very likely have to fly there which makes his "consultation" visit all the more significant. There have already been reports of an Italian Diplomatic Mission, complete with an interpreter knowing English, having arrived in Lisbon. Can it all indicate an approach by Italy direct and through General Franco to Britain and America?

The answer may well be yes, because there is no doubt that the Italians do want to get out of the war. Badoglio himself has been stressing not so much the obligation to continue the war as the need for terms to end it. And he has allowed Signor Orlando to broadcast a message to Sicilians, which, if not incompletely reported, blames Fascism for the war and virtually absolves the Allies for responsibility for the present situation. But the difficulty is about the terms. Badoglio rejects "unconditional surrender." He also wants Italy to be out of the war and not a base for Allied operations against Germany. This will involve, for the Allies, not only a repudiation of their own previous declarations. It also closes up a vulnerable gap in Hitler's "Festung Europa". Badoglio's peace policy, which will naturally be supported by General Franco, simply cannot be accepted.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

MacArthur's Victory

While the eyes of the world are fixed on Quebec where the blue-prints of the second front proper are being drawn by the Anglo-American General Staff under the personal guidance of President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill, the Pacific theatre also shows signs of warming up. By the very nature of things, General MacArthur cannot present the world with dramatic victories like those of the Red Army or like General Eisenhower's in Sicily. His progress is necessarily, laboriously slow though sure and decisive. It has been long seen by strategists, however, that the island-to-island hopping would prove a war of attrition as much for the Allies as for the Japs and that the former must find some other speedier means of dispatching the Japs back to Tokyo. The obvious answer is the air arm—an arm with which General MacArthur was not too plentifully endowed so long.

Day Of Reckoning

Now that the supplies are pouring into Australia out of the Anglo-American pool, General MacArthur has lost no time in stepping up his air offensive. The comparatively short period in which Munda was captured, for example, was largely due to the incessant carpet-blasting of the enemy airfields. The greatest single air triumph was, however, achieved two days ago when in a surprise air attack on the Wewak airfields, almost a crippling blow was delivered upon the Jap air arm. Out of a total of 225 enemy planes only 10 remain to tell the tale of the havoc caused. Simultaneously with this, a number of Jap ships were sent to the bottom of the sea by Allied aircraft. All this is most heartening and shows that the reckoning day of the Asiatic member of the Axis also is not too far away. But it is operations from Burma which will actually bring it about and the sooner these operations start the nearer will be the day.

Bengal's Plight

Frantic cries for more food are being heard from numerous parts of Bengal, as if the whole province were one vast famine camp. There is severe scarcity in many other provinces but the conditions in Bengal are shocking. According to the latest report, 129 persons picked up in the streets of Calcutta in state of collapse due to starvation or sickness were admitted to hospital, making a total of 256 admissions since Sunday of whom 21 died. And the Health Officer has given a warning that there is every chance of a serious outbreak of epidemic diseases in the city unless suitable measures are adopted immediately. If things are not mended very soon, the morale of millions in a war danger zone may be irretrievably ruined. But the time has come when leaders and workers must learn to rely most on themselves. The people's free kitchens are a step in the right direction. It is also most gratifying to learn that philanthropists in Bengal and outside have offered to feed and educate a number of orphans. Dr. S. P. Mookerjee's appeal to Government to import more food and publish full food statistics may fall on deaf ears. The people must be organised everywhere to grow more vegetables and other food stuffs that can be grown soon.

VALIDATING ORDINANCE IN FEDERAL COURT

Madras Advocate-General Continues Arguments

NEW DELHI, Aug. 19.

The main legal objection to the Ordinance validating the Defence of India Rule 26 was explained and answered in the course of today's proceedings before the Federal Court, when Sir Alladi Krishnaswami Ayyar, Advocate-General, Madras, continued his arguments.

Justice Sir Varadachariar referred to Clause Two of the Ordinance and said it laid down not only what the law shall be in the future but declared what the law should always be deemed to have been. He characterised it as far too sweeping and asked, since an Ordinance was limited in its duration to the period of an emergency, could it seek to make any law effective beyond the period of emergency? Supposing an Ordinance made an amendment in a permanent enactment, was it not the correct legal position that as soon as the Ordinance expired, the permanent enactment resumed its original form. Did not the change made by the Ordinance expire with the expiry of the Ordinance itself? If that was conceded, how could the Ordinance validating the Defence of India Rule 26 seek to lay down in effect that an earlier enactment must be deemed not to have existed at all? Taking the case of an Ordinance which sought to make a new law altogether but which did not in terms limit its duration to the period for which an Ordinance was good, Sir Varadachariar asked what would be the position?

Sir Alladi suggested that if it sought to make a new law effective beyond the period of emergency, the Governor-General in issuing it would be exceeding his powers.

Sir Varadachariar: We use more polite language. We say we shall construe it in the light of his real powers.

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

Sir Varadachariar proceeded to observe that it had been said that once we granted an emergency, it was not for the court to say what kind of legislation was required to meet it. Supposing, for instance, an Ordinance guaranteed certain companies against loss for ten years, was that in excess of the Ordinance-making power?

Sir Alladi said it was possible to give a number of alternative answers. One possible view was that an emergency was only an occasion for the exercise of a power. The emergency did not limit the duration of the exercise of the power. The occasion for the exercise of the powers consequent upon the arising of the emergency during war did not come to an automatic end with the signing of peace. He also argued that legislation could be both retrospective and prospective without delimitation of time. That principle was applicable as much to this legislation as to any other. We must leave it to the good sense of legislatures, including in this term both the Governor-General and the Legislature, to remove improper survivals at the right time.

Sir Varadachariar: Could the Governor-General lay down that something should have been the law before the emergency arose?

Sir Alladi argued that the Governor-General could issue an Ordinance which could be retrospective to the extent, as a matter of legal theory. In the absence of a specific restriction on the power conferred upon a legislative authority that legislative authority could pass an enactment which was retroatactive. There was no special power needed to give retrospective effect. It was a normal incident of legislative power. But we could expect the Governor-General to act properly as could be expected of a person who had no advisers in the strict constitutional sense of the term.

VALID FOR ALL TIME!

Referring later to the position that would arise after the expiry of an Ordinance Sir Varadachariar asked what would happen if detenus, feeling that they had been illegally detained, sued for damages after the lapse of the Ordinance. Could an act done before the passing of the Ordinance be precluded from examination for all time even after the lapse of the Ordinance?

Sir Alladi maintained that his was exactly his contention. Whatever was done during the currency of the Ordinance was not only good for that time, but it remained vital and valid for all time.

ENGINEER ON GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S POWERS

The Advocate-General of Bombay, Mr. N. P. Engineer, who argued next said that the section relating to the Ordinance-making power of the Governor-General was also present in the previous constitution of the country, and, as stated in that section, the object of that power was to achieve peace, order and good Government. This was a clear indication, he contended, that the Governor-General had been given a wider scope than the Indian Legislature.

Mr. Engineer submitted that although section 72 was not made in a time of emergency, yet it was made and designed expressly for the purpose of meeting an emergency.

The Court adjourned till tomorrow.

The view that if a document was shown to the judges to base their judgment on, it must become public and be available to everybody was expressed by Justice Sir Mohd Zafrullah this morning when M. J. C. Gupta, one of the advocates appearing against the Crown in the present appeals before the Federal Court, brought to the notice of their lordships that in the lower court they were not shown a copy of the "rules of business," but were provided with a few excerpts from it, on the ground that it was a confidential document, while one judge was allowed to see the document after he had given an undertaking that he would not make it public. Therefore, Mr. Gupta regretted, that he would be unable to reply to points touching that document because they had not seen the whole of it.—A. P.

Tushar Kanti Ghosh's Advice To Journalists To Form Association On Trade Union Lines

SRINAGAR, Aug. 19.

"OURS IS ONE OF THE NOBLEST PROFESSIONS ON EARTH; AT THE SAME TIME, AND BECAUSE IT IS SO NOBLE, IT IS THE MOST DIFFICULT PROFESSION ONE CAN ADOPT. WE JOURNALISTS HAVE FORGED THE GREATEST WEAPON IN THE ARSENAL OF DEMOCRACY. WE MUST NOT, THEREFORE, PERMIT ANYBODY, WHOEVER HE MAY BE, THE STATE OR THE EMPLOYER—TO ENCROACH UPON OUR FREEDOM TO RECORD FACTS AND EXPRESS OUR CONCLUSIONS OR TO DENY US A JUST RETURN FOR OUR LABOURS. NOR MUST WE ALLOW ANY DIFFERENCES AMONGST OURSELVES TO WEAKEN OUR UNITED STRENGTH. MY FINAL ADVICE, IN FACT, MY FINAL REQUEST, TO YOU ALL IS—UNITE, UNITE, UNITE".

Thus observed Mr. Tushar Kanti Ghosh, Editor, "Amrita Bazar Patrika", presiding over the Jammu and Kashmir Journalists Conference today.

"Suspensions, penalties and forfeitures of journals have become common affairs", said Mr. Ghosh. "Yet I can find no necessity for this punitive zeal on the part of the authorities. Generally speaking, the press in India has been giving an intelligent support to the war and peace aims of the United Nations. It has a clear perspective of the issues at stake and the ideals and principles that a victory over Fascism involved.

"DRASTIC PUNITIVE MEASURES"

"If the press has been critical of some of the extraordinary measures taken in the name of the war emergency, it is because it has found them foolish or contrary to those ideals and principles. As every day passes, it becomes clearer and clearer that the Government at the Centre and in the Provinces and States are heading for absolute control over the Press by hedging in its course with a multitude of drastic punitive measures. If we have to live and do our duty by the public, we must resist this mischievous move."

Referring to the question of resistance of encroachment upon the principles of the press through propaganda and subsidy Mr. Gosh said: "I do not for a moment doubt the integrity of those journals and those journalists who support the administration in what others regard as folly or wastefulness out of honest conviction. But I must say it is bad statesmanship and a corrupt practice to seek to subsidise a section of the press for supporting the administration or to maintain praise-singing journals out of their own funds. Wherever this happens I take it that there is a state of "war of nerves" between the governing power and the governed. And we journalists are always the champions of the governed, of the underdog who is being unfairly treated. The only way in which we can hope to resist this evil successfully is to create a united front among journalists for the maintenance of our rights. United we stand, divided we fall.

"As you know, the provincial journalists' bodies and the All-India Newspaper Editors' Conference have done something and are trying to do something more for the press in British India. As the States enjoy considerable freedom in managing their internal affairs, I doubt if the immediate problems arising in your case can be directly or immediately influenced by the All-India body. But just as you can always take up the

PATEL QUITS HALL ON MAYOR'S RULING

A piquant situation arose in the Municipal Corporation on Thursday by the presence once again of Mr. I. S. Patel, whose seat as Municipal Councillor was declared vacant last week by the Municipal Commissioner.

Mr. Patel attended the House on Monday last but he was asked to leave the House as he was no longer a Municipal Councillor through a chit sent by a Municipal official. As Mr. Patel again attended the Corporation meeting on Thursday presumably on legal advice, Mr. R. K. Tatnis got up and asked Dr. J. A. Collaco who presided whether a gentleman who was a non-member could sit along with the Municipal Councillors.

Mr. Motichand G. Kapadia said it was a question of the right of the Councillors and a very important question for the House. Under Section 70 (B) of the Municipal Act, if a councillor absented himself for 12 successive months, he loses his seat. They had to consider what construed 12 successive months. The Municipal Corporation held a regular meeting once a month. From September last to the end of August would mean 12 successive months. As Mr. Patel had attended August meeting last year, the stipulated year would expire at the end of August and therefore Mr. Patel was entitled to sit in the House.

Mr. A. P. Sabawala and Mr. R. K. Tatnis wanted explanation or ruling from the Municipal Commissioner or the Chairman on the matter.

Mr. M. N. Talpade averred that the constitution of the House should be maintained and respected.

Hon. Raja Bahadur Govindlal Shivlal said that neither the Municipal Commissioner nor the Chief Judge had declared Mr. Patel disqualified.

The Municipal Commissioner said he had consulted Municipal Solicitors on the matter and he was advised that as Mr. Patel was absent for 12 successive months, he had lost his seat. He had not declared Mr. Patel disqualified but only declared that his seat had become vacant. Now it was open for Mr. Patel to go to the Small Causes Court and contest this declaration of the Municipal Commissioner.

Dr. J. A. Collaco cited the opinion of the late Mr. J. D. Inverarity who was consulted on a similar subject, and who opined that a year meant 365 days and if a councillor absents himself for a year, meaning thereby 365 days continuously, he 'ipso facto' vacated the chair. As Mr. Patel had absented for more than a year, he had vacated his seat and he had no right to sit in the Corporation. It was open to him to go to the Court and challenge the ruling.

Mr. Patel before leaving the hall said he absented himself on account of the Government action and his absence was not voluntary.

MILK SUPPLY TO THE CITY

Mr. Mohanlal M. Desai then moved the following resolution :—

"That the attention of the Government of Bombay be invited to the grave situation arising on account of the soaring prices of milk in the City which is likely to result in the deterioration of the health of the citizens and in an increase in infant mortality and they be requested to devise ways and means for the proper control of the prices, such as transport facilities for milk, milch cattle, etc., and for stopping slaughter of such animals."

Mr. Desai said in 1901, the price of milk was three annas per seer, in January last, it was five annas and now it was twelve annas per seer. For want of pure and cheap milk infant mortality had increased and it was incumbent upon them as city fathers to impress upon the Government on the gravity of the situation.

Mrs. Lilavati Munshi seconded the proposition said, the stopping of the slaughter of the milch cattle and the facility for the transport of fodder were essential.

Mr. Mirza Akhtar Hassan moved an amendment to delete the word "stopping of the slaughter of milch cattle."

At this stage, further discussion was adjourned.

Some ladies of the Mahila Sangha attended the Hall as visitors.

Some Labour M. P.'s suggest that Lord Linlithgow "even at this late hour should do the sane and proper thing" by releasing Congress leaders.

The implication of insanity about the present policy is intolerable. So intolerable that the M. P.'s concerned should consider themselves extremely lucky that they are neither Indians nor in India.

The Secretary of the Durban Indian Municipal Employees Society reports that among the 6,000 Indians living in Council owned barracks, tuberculosis is rampant and the death rate has risen to 30 per month.

It is perhaps slightly unfortunate. But we trust no representation will be made to the Government of India and no prayers offered for relief even to God Almighty.

General Smuts very naturally resents any appeal to any Foreign Power.

An obiter dictum approvingly offered by Anglo-India: "If you have overcome your inclination and not been overcome by it, you have reason to rejoice."

True. But we are sure it doesn't include the inclination to "hold" what belongs to others on the ex-parte assertion that it is "ours."

In a special message, Algiers radio has encouragingly urged the people of Nazi-occupied Europe "to perfect all your preparations in the shortest possible time."

They must really hurry. An invasion may be launched any time, any hour in the second half of the next twelve months.

cause of journalists in British India, the All-India body can take up your cause and help your efforts to bring the State Government into a more reasonable frame of mind in regard to the press. I trust you have noticed the mutual benefit of co-operation among one another on common questions relating to the conduct of business. To bring that co-operation to bear practical results it is necessary that there should be an element of mutual understanding among the papers."

Coming to the question of journalists wages Mr. Ghosh referring to the past and present circumstances said :

I believe newspaper managements are now generally quite conscious of their obligations to the journalists, but it is possible that some of them may have retained old-fashioned ideas about wages. My request to the latter is to march with the times. As for journalists, we should have a united body, say, an association on Trade Union lines—and should have sufficient unity among ourselves to enforce our reasonable demands.—United Press.

Mr. S A Breivi Mr. B G Horniman Mrs Sarojben Yodh, Bachuben Lotewala, Vasantben Bharatya Mrs. Kapilaben Mehta etc have issued the following to the Gujarati Public:—

"The Indian Peoples Theatre Association has decided to stage the play "Narmad" on the life of the great poet Narmadashanker Kavi on August 24, at 9 p.m. and on August 29, at 10 a.m. at the Bhangvadi Theatre in aid of the Cholera and the Bijapur Famine relief work. On the great occasion of the Narmad Jayanti such a move to raise funds to help the relief work is highly commendable and we urge on the public to see the play and thereby celebrate the memory of the great humanitarian poet Narmad and also help the famine and Cholera Relief work.

The Half-Column
By "Dim"

The situation in Calcutta is deteriorating. The story in the "Statesman" of the dying boy of 8 who was picked up and left where he was found because no help could be got for him made horrible reading. Comment is hardly necessary. Perhaps the correspondent in the "Statesman" best expresses our feelings. "Such disgraceful experience is a matter of common knowledge. Nevertheless the incident calls for wide publicity. Are passers-by to inured to such scenes and devoid of any touch of human feeling? Is this what civilisation and education have brought to this country? And have hospitals and authorities no duty to such poor people? And what of the naked, hungry, destitute women and children, old and infirm, abounding in the city? Do they make no appeal to those who are to be presumed to be members of civilised human society"?

I understand that Tatas have given very generously to the Bengal Relief Fund. It is particularly inspiring to see this Indian industrial house respond to every call that is made on them. But one single industrial house cannot reduce the tragedy, the hunger and the poverty of those people. It is said by those who have recently come here from Calcutta that such is the wailing of the hunger-stricken who have come to Calcutta from neighbouring villages that it can be heard piercing the stillness of the night. How we wish Mr. Amery could hear this. But his stone-cold heart makes him make ugly statements in the Commons. One day he will be made to eat those words, the only morsel he'll ever have from us.
